Conclusions:

We can talk about political and equal rights with the beginning of XX century, since women had the "right to vote" and are represented in parliaments like men.

Austria 1918/1919 – 6 women in parliament Poland 1918 – 8 women in parliament
Spain – from 1931 and then again 1976 Germany 1919 – 37 women in parliament

After the 1.WW Austria, Germany, Poland became democratic republics.

Spain II Republic in 1931. Equal rights in the constitution/with political, social and civil rights/ women voted in 1933 and 1936.

Removal of the most women's rights.

Since 1930 different political totalitarian system emerged: dictatorship, fascism. Spain from 1936-1975 Franco-regime.

Women are segregated at home with the support of the Catholic Church.

Austria /1938 -1945/ and Germany / 1933-1945/ organized „motherliness" and gender segregation.

Communist system in Poland, new constitution 1952 with equal rights.

Since the 60ties/seventies second, "Women's movement" with reform in family law, working issues, mother's maternity leaves,...

6	Women's right to obtain a kindergarten place for their children	1996	Regulated since 2010 and regards only one year before school entry	Not regulated	Not regulated

Conclusions:

Women's access to education on the secondary level started more or less at the same time in all 4 countries.

The opening of the universities' doors for the women took some time. It depended on the faculty /first philosophy, medicine much later/.

We have talked about the women's rights during Authoritarianism:

Germany: During the NS Government 1933 – 1945, women were deprived of passive vote rights and other gained rights of equality were withdrawn.

Austria: at the end of WW1 women had many rights which were withdrawn in the period of "Austrofascismus" 1933-1938. Many women were forced into emigration during that period i.e. before the outbreak of WW2. Or lived and survived in hideouts. Several of Austrian Women took a clear position and fought against the regime.

Spain: the Franco-regime abolished women rights.

Poland: during communist time 1945-1989 women had equal rights.

Conclusions:

1. In general:

In Poland and Spain a backlash is taking place due to influence of the Catholic Church, so in many aspects the situation in these two countries is similar. For other reasons the analyzed situation is similar in Germany and Austria.

2. Civil marriage:

2a/ During the 19th century the situation was similar in all countries, civil marriage was not obligatory. In Poland it was possibility under Napoleon Code – short time 1809 -1825.

In general there were religious marriages and civil marriage only for exceptional cases. In Spain only religious marriage.

Same regulations for divorce: from the religious point of view anyway not permissible, civil divorce in special cases.

2b/ The situation in the 20th century is varied. Poland had obligatory civil marriage after 2nd WW, and then after the Concordat with the Vatican 1977 religious marriage dominates again, has civil impact and is sufficient. Same situation in Spain – religious marriage has civil impact. In Germany and Austria civil marriage became obligatory.
